

SEVEN HIGH NAZI LEADERS DEPOSIT FUNDS ABROAD

Goering, Hess, Goebbels, Von Ribbentrop, Ley, Himmler, Streicher in Group

A TOTAL OF $34,873,500

Nazi Law Has Death Penalty For Any Citizen to Have Undeclared Assets Abroad

By H. R. Knickerbocker
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Documentary evidence that seven of the highest Nazi leaders believe Adolf Hitler has prepared for war or revolutions at home by depositing large funds abroad and by taking out heavy foreign insurance policies was revealed to me today by representatives of one of the oldest and most famous institutions of its kind in America.

Hitler alone, among the highest Nazi chieftains has abroad no assets which could be discovered.

Two years of expert investigation has established, however, that Goering, Hess, Goebbels, Von Ribbentrop, Ley, Himmler and Streicher all have deposited in foreign neutral countries cash investments and insurance totaling $34,873,500.

According to Nazi law it is the penalty or death penalty for any German citizen to possess undeclared foreign currency or other assets abroad.

It is notable that the seven Nazis named in this list, including Hitler's own choice for his successor—Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering—and Goering's successor, Rudolf Hess, deputy leader of the Nazi party, as well as Heinrich Himmler—head of the secret police, Robert Ley, chief of the labor front, and Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, who is richest in foreign cash holding, owning over $4,500,000 in currency.

There is no doubt but that the whole report constitutes an unparalleled piece of investigation, involving not only incredible industry and travel all over the globe, but intimate contacts with banking institutions which could be only possessed by central organization with world-wide connections such as conducted this piece of political international research.

It carries a conviction that will be difficult to shake. It has not yet been published in England, but in these

"Jubilee Excursion" To N. Y. Fair Scheduled for 30th

Plans for an exclusive excursion from stations on the Pennsylvania Railroad between Torrisedale and Morrisville to the New York World's Fair, at special low rates, were announced today by officials of the railroad, to be operated on Saturday, September 30. The special train will start from Torrisedale and after leaving Morrisville will run directly through New York City to the World's Fair Station which is one of the main entrances to the fair grounds.

Railroad officials are calling this a "jubilee excursion." The schedule mapped out for the day calls for the special train to arrive at 9:40 a. m. The admission fee will be 50 cents for adults and 10 cents for children under 14 years of age, and in order to avoid any delay, or possible congestion at the entrance to the Fair, these tickets can be purchased at the ticket office before boarding the train. Round-trip excursion tickets will be placed on sale within a few days.

The complete schedule for the trip follows:

Leave Torrisedale	7:30 A. M.
Andalusia	7:33 A. M.
Cornwells Heights	7:36 A. M.
Eddington	7:39 A. M.
Croydon	7:42 A. M.
Bristol	7:46 A. M.
Edgely	7:49 A. M.
Tullytown	7:52 A. M.
Morrisville	7:58 A. M.

Representatives of the passenger traffic department will accompany the party through to the World's Fair. Returning, the special excursion train will leave from the Long Island Railroad World's Fair station at 10:45 P. M. and make the same stops as on the going trip.

CROYDON

The Fathers and Mothers Association of Croydon School will start meetings this evening at 8:30.

Variety of Gifts Are Presented Miss Antosh

A miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Mary Ann Antosh, 256 Hayes street, Monday evening, by her attendants-to-be, Miss Katherine Antosh, Miss Theresa Elcenko, Hayes street, Miss Julia Firce and Miss Sophie Oser, Edgely. The affair was held at the home of Mrs. William Smallwood, Hayes street, and it was a complete surprise to Miss Antosh. The rooms were decorated with pink and blue. Games were enjoyed, and refreshments served.

PERKASIE WOMEN PLAN YEAR'S PROGRAM

First Meeting of The Season Will Be Held October 4th

MRS. FRETZ PRESIDENT

PERKASIE, Sept. 20.—Organized in 1897 and federated in 1914, the Perkassie Women's Club, of which Mrs. Nelson O. Fretz is the president, will begin activities of the season at a meeting to be held in Fraternity Temple, here, on Wednesday, October 4. Greetings will be extended by a vice president, Mrs. Enos A. Wampole; the present incumbent, Mrs. Nelson O. Fretz, and the president of the junior section, Miss Frances Moyer. During the afternoon Mrs. Raymond Cope will render a vocal solo and members will tell how they spent their vacations.

Very attractive folders, in which have been arranged the programs for the ensuing year, have been distributed among the club members. They have been informed that the second meeting of the season will take place on October 18, at which time Past Presidents' Day will be observed with Mrs. Harry Neamand and Mrs. Lewis N. Snyder as the hostesses. Guests on that occasion will include the past presidents of the club. Obligation of

In They Come

(By "The Stroller")

A temperance paper, made up of a single sheet, printed on both sides, is in the possession of Mrs. Edward Hendrickson, 927 Garden street. The paper, "The Commonwealth," printed in Mt. Holly, N. J., on October 4, 1854, was called to our attention after a suggestion was made that residents of this area might own some old newspapers. This particular copy is the second issue of the paper which devotes its columns to temperance stories, poems, the temperance tickets, etc.

James R. Chichester, Edgely, has at his home a copy of the New York Ledger of October 14, 1859, the sole publisher being R. Bonner. The main topic for discussion in the issue was the fact that the proposed 600 foot Washington monument had reached a height of 150 at that time. The paper contains 12 pages, made up chiefly of stories and poems.

Mrs. Eva Weller, Croydon, has a copy of the Philadelphia Ledger of September 21, 1914. The final edition of the Vicksburg Daily Citizen, entitled "Grant's Wallpaper Edition," published on July 2, 1863, by J. M. Swords, is the proud possession of Mrs. Jesse Betz, Edgely. This single sheet of wallpaper is printed on one side only, and contains accounts of General Grant's activities and other Civil War news. Prices of flour was quoted at $5 lb.; molasses, $10 gallon; corn, $10 bushel.

Mrs. A. F. Winterstein, 211 Radcliffe street, owns two copies of newspapers which were printed in the South over a century ago. A copy of The Union, published in Georgetown, S. C., on March 29, 1834, carries an editorial which other newspapers are requested to copy "States Rights Party and Others." The issue of the Charleston Courier of November 11, 1831, has only advertisements appearing on the first page, many being for sale of slaves.

In the possession of Mrs. Merton Randall, Bath street, are the following papers: The Emporium, Trenton, N. J., of December 1, 1821; copies of the Doylestown Democrat of September 27, 1831, and May 1, 1832, these being published by William H. Powell.

Four old Philadelphia papers are owned by Frank B. Jackson, Edgely, namely: Sunday Dispatch, June 23, 1872; Evening Telegraph, July 18, 1867; The Lutheran, July 13, 1865; the Inquirer, September 29, 1870.

Warsaw Repels Attacks

Warsaw, Sept. 20.—The beleaguered Polish capital today repelled a series of smashing German attacks from all sides.

Radio reports of fighting received in Budapest indicated that Warsaw is now completely surrounded, but evidently is making good its pledge to fight to the last man.

Today was the 13th day of the siege of Warsaw, which has defied all attempts to surrender and is now fighting off the heaviest German assaults yet directed against the city.

New German Setbacks

Paris, Sept. 20.—Great Britain and France, rejecting a Hitler dictated peace, consolidated their position today to thwart any attempted German invasion of Belgium and nip in the bud the "Blitzkrieg," beloved of Nazi strategists.

As war communiques No. 33 told of continued artillery exchanges on the western front, and unofficial messages indicated new German setbacks in the Saar region, the Council of Ministry approved a declaration that France remain determined to fight until Hitlerism is crushed.

The declaration likewise reasserted French solidarity with Great Britain in political as well as military fields. At the moment, the British high command of foreign nations is engaged chiefly in mapping plans to throw back any German march through Belgium and in Belgium all fortifications are determined France as utmost vital.

GEORGE SCHOOL CLASSES WILL BEGIN TODAY

Members of the Faculty Hold Conferences and Plan Opening Classes

NEW FACULTY MEMBERS

NEWTOWN, Sept. 20.—Members of George School faculty returned on Saturday for the joint opening conferences of the faculty and the committee of management. These conferences were addressed by Vice President William Eves 3rd, who recently returned from 2 months' stay in Europe; Dr. Walter H. Mohr, teacher of history, who reported on his findings on visits to the T. V. A. project in Tennessee; Wilhelm Hufin, director of religious teaching, who spent the Summer in California and Arthur H. Brinton, teacher of English, who spent his vacation on a bicycle tour of the British Isles.

Students are returning today, the classes being called for this date.

Richard M. McFeely will become director of studies, succeeding Herbert Abraham, who has accepted a position with the University of Chicago. Arthur H. Brinton will take over Mr. McFeely's duties at Orton Hall. John Hollister, English; Kathryn Hoyt, physical education for girls, and Ernest F. Legars, history, who were interned teachers last year, will return as regular members of the faculty. Heinrich Banth, a German refugee from Florence, Italy, who came to George School as a guest teacher of modern languages, has been made a member of the faculty. William S. Burton, M. S. of University of Illinois, will fill the vacancy in the science department. This was caused by the resignation of Barton Lensing, Jr. Marjory A. Morgan is teaching physical education for girls. Thomas E. Hallowell, who was graduated from George School last June, will assist in the Mechanical arts department.

Due to the illness of Robert Brown, instructor of manual arts, George H. Nutt, vice principal emeritus, will substitute in that department. William Satterthwaite will also be continued in that department. Internes for 1939-40 are mathematics, Kate K. Durfee, Smith; English, Blanche V. Anderson, Earham and Bryn Mawr; fine arts, Oliver W. Nuse, University of Penna. and history, David B. Stuffed, Guilford College. There have been several improvements made in the school plant during vacation. Under the supervision of Julian P. McCreary, director of music, arrangements may be made for students to take violin lessons at George School from Louis Angeloy, Phila., who is a teacher at Jenkintown School of Cultural Arts.

The East Bristol Township Parent-Teacher Association will hold its first meeting of the school year on Thursday evening at the school house at eight o'clock. Plans will be made at this meeting for the remaining meeting of the year.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

A three-act comedy entitled, "Three-Cornered Moon," will be presented in the Morrisville High auditorium on Friday night, October 20, as the first production of the Fall season for the Morrisville Little Theatre.

Director Bernice Howard conducted tryouts at the meeting of the group on Thursday evening and casting will be announced later. Two more productions will be staged by the group on March 22 and May 17, according to the president, Mrs. Alvin R. Pratt.

Miss Miriam Glantz, chairman of the patrons committee, announces that patrons' ticket reservations are now being received, entitling the holder to a reserved seat for each production.

William H. Howell, well-known Morrisville amateur actor and producer, told of his trip in New England and of the Summer theatres he visited, at Thursday's session at Summerseat.

The executive committee of the Newtown P. T. A. met this week at the home of Mrs. William Kenderdine to

SEASCOUT SHIP ELKS PUT ON FINE EXHIBIT

Chose Signalling As Their Display at The Doylestown Fair

WAS CREDITABLY DONE

The Seascout Ship Elks placed second at Doylestown Fair in the Bucks County Council Scout Exhibit.

The local ship chose signalling as their display project and it was exceedingly well prepared. The group depicted various methods of signalling aboard ship together with numerous warning signals. Much time was spent in preparing the exhibit and the boys deserve a lot of credit for their efforts.

Saturday evening, the Seascouts of Bristol will be hosts to the remainder of the county at a party in the Presbyterian Church. A fine program has been arranged and a good time is expected.

Plans are under way for the annual Seascout ball and bridge of honor which will also be arranged by the Seascout Ship Elks this year. This is the largest affair of the Seascout year and one to which all the Seascouts look forward. If the plans now under consideration materialize this will be one of the finest yet held.

Open Registrations For Cooking Classes

Registration is now open for the cooking classes to be held at the Bristol Community Center, 115 Franklin street, each Tuesday afternoon and evening. Any one interested in attending these classes, may leave his name and age at the office at the center.

Cooking classes for boys will be held Wednesday afternoon and evening. Any boy interested may leave his name and age at the Community Center office.

Some of the food for these classes is furnished by surplus food commodities. Some is donated by Kings Farms and others interested in the community center.

A Fake Disappearance

September 19. WHEN, a week or so ago, the President's secretary announced to the press that the "Brain Trust" was "out the window" and later let it be known that this meant the Messrs. Corcoran and Cohen, there was quite a flutter among the smaller New Deal figures.

THEIR dismay was reflected in the columns of the radical weeklies and in the pained expressions of various spokesmen of the "inner circle." The idea was a boon to the cartoonists and it got the sort of publicity that impressed a good many people. There was, in fact, a general feeling that this was a splendid way for Mr. Roosevelt to obtain co-operation during a critical period. It seemed in the interests of "national unity."

However, there were at the time a few skeptical fellows, who, looking at the facts, knowing something of Mr. Roosevelt and the extent of his reliance upon a certain group, thought the whole business phony, and said so.

IT NOW seems that they were entirely right. Mr. Early, who is a sincere man and never one of the "group," unquestionably thought he was justified in making, and was authorized to make, his announcement. Nevertheless, as things turned out, he seems to have made a mistake. At least that is the present White House attitude. Within the last few days, the President, personally, has given assurance to various members of the "Brain Trust" that there is

Miss E. Wise is Hostess, Honoring Miss Reichert

Miss Edith Wise, Monroe street, was a pleasing hostess Monday evening at a kitchen shower at her home in honor of Miss Marie Reichert, Bridgewater.

The evening was enjoyed in games, with prizes being awarded to the fortunate ones. The table was attractive with a centerpiece of a large cake upon which was a miniature bride and groom; and the decorative scheme was red and white. Refreshments were served and favors of small colonial bouquets given.

Those participating: Mrs. William Reichert, Miss Marie Reichert and Mrs. Anna Safran, Bridgewater; Miss Laura Cameron, Newportville; Mrs. Charles Hausmann, Mayfair; Miss Dorothy Hunkler, Olney; Mrs. William Borchers, Mrs. Helen Campbell, Mrs. George Perkins, Mrs. James Sullivan, Mrs. Fred Herman, Jr., Mrs. Fred Wise, Miss B. G. Borchers, Miss Janice Muffett and Miss Edith Wise, Bristol.

ENGLISH OFFER PRIZES, ATTRACTIVE SHELTERS

Miss Emily Schroeder, Bensalem Twp. Teacher, Tells of Experiences Abroad

IN TWO AIR-RAID DRILLS

While in America prizes are offered for most attractive lawns, or for improvement to the yards of the individual homes, in some English towns awards these days are offered to the property owner who makes his air-raid shelter most attractive.

This bit of information was brought back to the United States by Miss Emily Schroeder, a member of the Bensalem Township high school faculty, who teaches social studies in grades 11 and 12. Miss Schroeder recently returned from a tour of the British Isles, and visits to Denmark and Sweden, the journey, which began on June 28th, ending on the sixth of September.

Miss Schroeder had the experience on her return aboard a British cargo ship of nights of black-outs, of having the ship while in mid-ocean placed under command of the British Admiralty, and while in England of participating in two air-raid drills. The 12 passengers, the only group aboard other than the crew of the cargo ship, were informed when they boarded the ship, guarantee would not be made that they reach America. "We were told that if the captain was ordered to turn about, and sail to England, that order would be followed. The last two nights we had no sleep," commented the instructress.

The party disembarked at Montreal, Canada, two days after war had been declared. When the captain was questioned as to how orders were received by the ship, after command was taken by the Admiralty, he told how two months previous he had received a sealed envelope, with instructions not to open it until ordered. When war was declared by England, the order to unseal was received, and a new code thus divulged. The envelope had been loaded, precautions thus being taken for destruction of the same, should the ship be captured.

"We had black-outs each night," continued the European visitor, "but by the aid of the beautiful Northern lights on some nights, we could readily read on deck. The colors were as vivid as those of the rainbow, and were visible for long periods. The ship evidently was travelling far North and this possibly explained the fact of the brightness also."

The trip to England was made on

Scout Council To Open Campaign For Budget

The annual campaign for the budget of the Boy Scouts of Bucks County is under way. C. L. Johnson, who conducted the drive so successfully last year, is again on the job and is forming the organization required for the work.

Last year the minimum goal of the campaign was $12,000, with a desired goal of $15,000. Something over $13,000 was realized. This year the minimum is set at $15,000 because of the growth in the number of scouts in the county.

This growth is continuous and healthy, and indicates the very real place that scouting takes in the lives of boys. "Boys want scouting," said Robert Goeller, scout executive. "They make good use of it. Hundreds of other boys would like to join troupes, and we would like to make it possible for them to do so. But, like all good things, it requires a certain amount of money. A budget of $15,000 is rather meagre for a county of 100,000 people."

BRISTOL MAN GETS 30 DAYS TO YEAR IN COUNTY JAIL

Love Laster Pleads Guilty To Driving Car While Intoxicated

LATTANIZI ALSO GUILTY

Bristol Man Charged With Driving Car Which Struck Carl Vetter, Jr.

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 20.—Thirty days to one year in the Bucks County Prison was the sentence that Judge Keller imposed on Love Laster, 50, of Bristol, after a plea of guilty to driving while drunk in Morrisville had been entered. Lester was arrested several times on minor charges. The defendant is the sole support of five children. His wife is deceased.

Dominic Lattanziz, Bristol, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to assault and battery by automobile. The defendant is charged with striking Carl Vetter, Jr., Bristol Twp., while driving on a Bristol Township street.

Judge Hiram E. Keller bitterly criticized the attitude of two Bristol Township boys, high school students, who appeared in the case as witnesses. The two, Charles Kallenbach and Ralph Neltzel, testified that they had purchased an old auto for $5. for the purpose of using the engine in a boat. Deciding to try out the car before dismantling it, the two asked Lattanziz, who had a driver's license, to drive the machine. It was during the ride that the Vetter lad was hit, and bill of one physician in the case totalled $139.50.

Judge Keller asked Neltzel and Kallenbach if they did not think they were equally guilty in the case with Lattanziz, and they replied in the negative. "Well, I think you are," answered the Judge. Judge Keller said he was impressed with the frankness of Lattanziz, and displeased with the attitude of the other two youths. He advised that Neltzel and Kallenbach talk the matter over with their parents, "and agree to do the only decent and manly thing—share the expenses of physicians bills with Lattanziz."

The father of Lattanziz appeared on the stand, stating that he was a widower with five children, and at present is out of work. The elder Lattanziz stated he had visited the Vetter home after the accident and offered to pay his son's share of the medical expenses, and stated if the parents of the other two lads did not agree to aid, he would see when able that the bill was paid. It was later that the Lattanziz lad, 17 years old, was arrested.

The Judge pointed out to Kallenbach and Neltzel that the Lattanziz youth, who for a time was raised in an orphanage, had not the advantages they had, and that they should shirk their duties. "I can't understand your attitude in this case," he added.

Sentence was suspended for Lattanziz, and he was placed on probation for one year, costs of the case to be paid by the county.

SEEKERS OF LIGHT

In the midst of war we have many other matters to think about, birth and life and death, the weather and taxes, the business of making a living, the dance and music and the theater and books.

According to the heads of library circulation departments, the present war has proved to be a surprising stimulus to readers, especially those who want books which will throw a light on the confused situation in Europe and its effect on the nations of other continents. The plight of one who haunts a library in search of knowledge which will help to rearrange the particles of the European kaleidoscope into some definite and understandable pattern calls for the sympathy of those who have had the temerity to wade through a mass of words and who have found their bewilderment increasing with every new volume that is published.

Many literary reputations have been made by books about the nations now at war, or in danger of getting into war, books which are in direct contradiction to one another. No doubt the facts are presented honestly, according to the author's lights; but out of the welter there comes no sign to point the way.

The titles are legion—Let the Record Speak, Inside Europe, Inside Asia, Mein Kampf, Reaching for the Stars, Through Embassy Eyes, We Shall Live Again, Bombs Bursting in Air, Betrayal in Central Europe, Europe Since 1914 and hundreds of others, many of which make interesting reading, but none of them big enough to lead the world out of darkness into light.

Perhaps this is too serious a time to discuss a subject so academic as literary style, regarded by the general public as important mostly to the cloistered ones in writers' sanctuaries. But we cannot help thinking of Herbert Spencer's essay on The Philosophy of Style—"the importance of economizing the reader's or hearer's attention."

There we have a dictum which is much too widely honored in the breach than in the observance. Brevity, pith, thinking honestly through, and writing as directly and simply as possible, these are qualities of literary style most needed in these trying times.

EVEN BETTER HOT DOGS

It is important news that an improved hot dog is about to make its appearance. Certainly, a large element of the community can be counted on to welcome whatever makes a genuine betterment of the popular American frankfurter, despite its rise already to a first position on the menu at the outdoor luncheon when President Roosevelt entertained King George and Queen Elizabeth.

Perfection in the way of a tender and tasty skin has finally been attained, Chicago announces. Detail of the complicated process is of little moment; using a fruit juice and "peptizing" the skins provides casings, it seems, having "pep" enough to hold but not in the least suggesting to masticators anything like a grisly hide.

News editors who try to fit a great war into their already limited space, tell us Einstein doesn't know the half of it.

Well, folks, we're off on a new boom—Europe has planned it that way.

not the slightest foundation for apprehension; that "Steve" exceeded his authority, and has been rebuked; that there has been no change in him, will be none to affect them; that they need feel no alarm about the "influx of business men;" that there has been and will be no alteration in policy.

—O—

THESE statements are based on the reports of various journalistic reflectors of the "inner circle," who invariably know what is in the minds and hearts of its members. By these it is now said that Mr. Roosevelt, of course, did not have to reassure the Messrs. Corcoran and Cohen, who were merely amused at the idea of throwing them "out the window," but that others of the group went directly to Mr. Roosevelt to find out where they stood. They got the most complete and satisfactory response, went away happy. Now, one of these inspired journalistic reflectors asserts, they understand that Mr. John Hancock, and other obnoxious business conservatives, named on the new War Resources Board, and brought into the Treasury, are window dressing and little else.

—O—

IT was essential to put "men of that type" on the Resources Board and a good political gesture at a time when an appeal for an abandonment of partisanship is being made. However, these conservatives are not presidential counselors and their advice is not being sought. Another ardent columnist affiliated with the "group" says:

"Leon Henderson, Bob Jackson, Jerome Frank, Tommy Corcoran, Isador Lubin, Ben Cohen and Harold Ickes are still at the controls." Still another declares that the same group, in which are the President's "most loyal personal followers," will "continue to trot in and out of the White House by the back door exactly as they have been doing for the last few years."

—O—

IN brief, the whole business is bunk. The announcement was just a piece of strategy. Newspapermen who fell for the story have every right to feel resentful, not with Mr. Early who was on the

CHAPTER I

CORONADO danced out of the paddock and strode boldly onto Santa Anita's dust-smooth track, a slim-legged, magnificent symphony in ebony. At sight of him Heather Mills rose in her box as if her own shining young beauty was lifted by the magnificence of the great race horse.

"Coronado!" she breathed, and her hand went to her lips as a kiss was wrung from them and tossed to the splendid creature shining like polished metal in the sun.

Coronado! The name on her lips was taken up in the acclaiming roar of 60,000 throats. It carried to the purple slopes of the Sierra Madres rising off the back stretch like a giant stage curtain backdrop.

Coronado! Coronado! Did the great race horse understand? He swaggered postward, tossing his mane proudly over the impatient heads of his eighteen eager rivals, all prepared to strain their hearts this day in an attempt to pass him.

His challenging eyes were ablaze with courage. His nostrils quivered and his long tail swished with the excitement of the race ahead.

Coronado was still working on a winning streak of fourteen straight! He had last savored victory on his sensitive velvet lips months before at Bay Meadows, when in a rattle and roll finish he had outgamed Stiletto in the stretch.

Greatest acclaim of all would come to him this day, with a victory that would hurl the name of Coronado eastward to the blue rolling hills of Kentucky, and on in triumph to Belmont and Saratoga.

The horse loving world was mustered for the Santa Anita Handicap to watch Coronado, the equine oriflamme, black prince of the western tracks, carry its money home in avalanches, for the big lights on the magic tote board across the track flashed him a 6 to 5 favorite.

Coronado seemed to sense this honor, prancing, eyes magnificently rolling, without a guiding move of the leg from his 112 pound jockey, Joe Gardner.

Down the stretch lane, flanked on both sides with the banked overflow of admirers, he came.

Then, pausing at the judges' stand, Coronado gave one of the almost human gestures that had made him the darling of the western tracks. He whirled, facing the grandstand.

Like a master showman saluting his public, Coronado reared, flung up his elegantly arched neck, stood momentarily poised—a miracle of strength and beauty—and bowed!

"Coronado!" squealed the crowd, enraptured.

Heather's small hands were clasped. She whispered, as if she could not believe it, "My Coronado!" For her future was Coronado's.

Strange that the life of a California girl, freshly home from a Maryland finishing school, should depend on the long, slim limbs and flashing speed of a race horse.

But Heather's father, old Dan Mills, whose spare figure was hunched in tweeds over the rail by the track, had lived all his days by the earnings of his splendid horses.

And Coronado was a horse beyond any of the others. He was every card in Dan's deck. As he raced to victory the fortunes of Dan and Heather would race with him.

Heather looked lovingly to Dan, over the cascading tiers of humans stirring with excitement. A horse-man of the old school her father, born with the turf in his blood and honesty in his bones. Not a betting man, but a sportsman whose supreme thrill came with seeing a horse of his win.

Dan's gray figure was motionless, but Heather could sense his almost prayerful excitement. She herself was thrillingly aware of that terrible eagerness for the first time in her 18 years.

For, while Heather was the daughter of old Dan, most ardent of the western horsemen, this was her first horse race!

"No daughter of mine," her San Francisco Social Register mother had stated firmly and often, "is going to track stable dirt into my drawing room!"

Heather whispered, "My Coronado!" as the great stakehorse, saluting his public as usual, reared. . .

But to two men, moved by the pressure of the excited crowd up to the back of Heather's box, this breathless pause before the race was not unstained with anxiety.

They came from the unreserved section, for Slim Maynard was, as he would have put it in his picturesque way, "on the Oregon shorts."

With him was Snapper Elliott, his devoted and often annoying satellite of the race tracks, who followed Slim in and out of hock. All the pair could scrape together today was on Coronado.

Slim Maynard was a mystery to the race tracks. He looked like a collar ad and talked the language of anyone to whom, at the moment, he was talking. A race tracker to the very fibre he knew horses from the hoof up, tracks from coast to coast, the mob who followed the gee-gees. . .

Slim hailed originally from Louisville, where his father had raced a great string when Slim was a youngster.

A flood brought ruin to the Maynard stables and Slim was left high and dry, with an eye and a love for thoroughbreds—strictly equine—developed through generations of hardboots that had a genius for judging horses and riders.

Slim could talk in two languages, that of the track and that of the drawing room. As Slim he was known from Santa Anita to Saratoga, but in spite of his easy familiarity with the tracks, he never lost the innate, gentlemanly touch that came from having been born Andrew Branson Maynard, of the once famous clan of distinguished Kentucky Maynards.

ON THE SCREENS

RITZ THEATRE
Timely is the word for Monogram's "Streets of New York," which opens today at the Ritz Theatre with Jackie Cooper in the starring role. Timely because the film deals with the American Way, demonstrating that from rags to riches is still possible in one country, that right does not depend upon might, and that, even in the face of tremendous odds, we can still find inspiration from the lives of great men.

Dorothy Fay, Tex Ritter's leading lady in Monogram's "Rollin' Westward," now at the Ritz Theatre, is one girl who is proud of her family tree. She has just reason too, for she can trace her lineage back to Nathaniel Hawthorne and Daniel Webster, both immortals of American history.

Concord Grape Jelly

NO "SOUR GRAPES" for home makers who use the short-bell jelly recipe!

With these foolproof directions, there's never a chance of failure—for they were specially developed for fully ripe Concord grapes. You'll have eleven glasses of perfect jelly ready for the paraffin just fifteen minutes after preparing the fruit—and the spread has that extra delicious flavor of sun-ripened grapes just picked from the vine.

Better make several batches while the fruit is ripe and plentiful. Here's the recipe, to be followed exactly:

RIPE CONCORD GRAPE JELLY
(Makes about 11 medium glasses.)
4 cups juice
7½ cups sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare juice, stem about 3 pounds fully ripe grapes and crush thoroughly. Add ½ cup water, bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix.

Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once.

SIX-MAN FOOTBALL LIKELY TO EXTEND THROUGH STATE

Sport Grips Northern Penna. and Much Interest is Manifested

IN THE SMALL SCHOOLS

McKean County Schools Were
The First To Try The System

By Tom R. Brislin
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)
HARRISBURG, Sept. 19.—Six-man football, already a part of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Association's program, may be extended throughout the State within the next year, it was indicated today.

Edmund C. Wicht, executive secretary of the PIAA, revealed that the sport, which originated in Nebraska, has gripped northern Pennsylvania and that considerable interest was being manifested by smaller high schools in other sections of the State.

Wicht said that the sport thus far was catching hold chiefly in smaller high schools lacking either material or money for the promotion of 11-man grid teams.

McKean County schools were first to try the "abbreviated" grid sport last season, with a nine-team league in operation. In addition, a number of Lehigh Valley schools tried six-man football "on an experimental basis," Wicht said.

Dr. A. R. Livermore, president of the McKean County School Directors' Association, in a report to Wicht, commented favorably on operation of the league.

In his report, Dr. Livermore declared that reaction to the game varied.

"The majority of the spectators," he said, "were pleased with it, claiming that it was a much more spectacular game to watch (than the 11-man game) with its open field running and passing.

"The players themselves said that they had more actual fun in the six-man game but liked the larger game better.

"School authorities favored the smaller game because it eliminated a lot of 'administrative headaches.' The financial outlay was reduced considerably and there was much less chance of injuries. Thus far, there has not been an injury in six-man football in the county."

Wicht, in explaining operation of the six-man game invented by Stephen Epler in 1934 when he was coaching at Chester, Nebraska, high school, pointed out that many small schools have adopted the smaller game rather than the 11-man game because:

1. Many of the boys that play are immature for the larger game.
2. Enrollments at smaller schools are generally insufficient to meet requirements of the 11-man game.
3. Equipment for larger game is too expensive.
4. Injury hazards in 11-man football are too great.

Wicht pointed out further that the six-man game retains all the basic features of 11-man football, including tackling and blocking.

Since its inception, Wicht said, the six-man game has become international. There were leagues in China and Hawaii and 101 Ontario schools played last year, he asserted. Surveys show, Wicht added, that some 2500 schools follow interscholastic and intramural six-man football in the nation last fall.

There are a number of rule differences in the six-man game, Wicht explained, outstanding of which (from the spectators' standpoint) is the method of scoring.

As in the 11-man game, a touchdown counts six points, he said, but a successful try after touchdown counts two points if made from placement or by a dropkick, but only one point by any other play.

A field goal, Wicht explained, counts four points and two points are added if a safety is made. After safeties and touchdowns are recorded, he added, the ball is put in play on the 15-yard-line.

Perhaps the most radical departure from the regular 11-man game, Wicht indicated, is the ruling whereby the six-man game may be terminated if a team proves to be far superior to its opponent. If, at the end of the first half or during the second half, a team scores 45 points more than the score of its opponent, the game automatically ends, Wicht said.

The six-man game is played on a field 100 yards long and 40 yards wide, the scrimmage zone being 80 yards in length. High school games, under the rules, are 40 minutes in length and junior high school game 32 minutes long.

Another outstanding difference from the 11-man game is the rule allowing centers, ends and backs to interchange positions at any time, with the team on offense required to have three players on the line at the snap of the ball.

English Offer Prizes, Attractive Shelters

the "Consuelo," and the return on the "Cairnesk." In returning to Canada, 12 days were consumed which, states Miss Schroeder, was fast for that particular boat. The sailing was delayed 10 days, and each time inquiry was made as to departure date, the reply received was, "The European situation is holding up the sailing."

Twice did the Bensalem teacher find it necessary to enter the concealed air-raid shelters, when she happened to be at points where drills were carried out. The one was in Regents Park, London, this large one accommodating several hundred people; and the second was in Devon, a private shelter accommodating eight individuals. "No dogs are permitted in these shelters, but I was told there are shelters for dogs," she commented. The shelters, invisible from the sky, are made attractive with grass, shrubbery, flowers.

"Although the English people seemed outwardly calm, you could see the horror of war appearing on their faces. It seemed inevitable, and everyone talked of it as a definite thing, even early in July." Before Miss Schroeder left London the balloon barrage was already in place, the stationary balloons holding huge nets which were to be used to entangle raiding planes. All over the area were posted air-raid protection orders. Other notices warned that children found playing with their gas masks would be subject to fines or imprisonment.

The evacuation of children from the thickly populated areas was mentioned, the visitor witnessing drill for 200 from Middleboro on the North Sea, the actual evacuation occurring a few days later. "Schools were opened early so that instructions might be given the girls and boys. The teachers accompany the pupils to the places of safety in the open country; but the evacuation is not compulsory," she added.

tery, which involves two small girls, Willard B. Mears, Hartsville farm hand, was heard before Judge Boyer.

The defendant, who is 29 years old and a native of Virginia, admitted putting his arm around a small girl but denied that he had attacked her or made any improper advances.

Mears has been in the County Prison three months and one week.

He has served six months in the Holmesburg Prison on a former charge.

Patrick H. Grace, 40, 1935 Arch street, Philadelphia, charged with drunken driving, went on trial before Judge Boyer on Monday afternoon.

Linford Smith, both of Yardley, who were driving along the Yardley-Morrisville highway, testified they saw the defendant operating a car along the same highway and that it swerved from side to side. They said the defendant appeared to be leaning over the steering wheel and that a woman in the car had the door partially open. They notified a Morrisville policeman who arrested the defendant.

Officer Andrew J. Thompson, who arrested the defendant July 25, said he smelled liquor on him and that he was apparently unfit to operate his automobile.

Dr. Theodore Cohen, who examined the defendant in his office in Morrisville, said that in his opinion he was unfit to operate an automobile. Grace, a World War veteran, in his testimony, admitted drinking some sherry with his eggs at breakfast, but denied that he was intoxicated. "Something went wrong with the steering wheel," he said.

Miss Catherine Carroll, 42, of Ambler, who is employed as a servant, testified she was not intoxicated and that her friend was not intoxicated. No disposition was made of the case on Monday afternoon.

The jury was composed of: John S. Clymer, Perkasio, R. D. 1; Florence Fretz, Perkasio; Joseph E. Ruffner, New Britain; Joseph Meehan, Langhorne, R. D.; James A. Bertles, Doylestown; Frank B. Jackson, Sellersville; Frank G. Rowe, Langhorne Manor; Roy Van Luvane, Doylestown, R. D. No. 1; Henry S. Stout, Quakertown; Jeremy E. Underwood, Doylestown; Clifford Creger, Yardley; Charles E. Wimmer, Quakertown.

Seven High Nazi Leaders Deposit Funds Abroad

dark days it may bring some situation for the allies to learn that so many Nazi party chieftains seem to have taken it for granted that some day the time would come when they would be unable to stay in Germany.

By International News Service

Britain and France said "no" today to Chancellor Hitler's ultimatum giving the alternatives of a peace based on the Russo-German partition of Poland, or a war which Germany is ready to wage for seven years.

Even Hitler did not see active participation of the Soviets in the West, saying only that the "two greatest nations" would re-establish "law and order" in Eastern Europe.

So, with the Soviet Union, Rumania and other Balkan states, and Italy remaining the big interrogation points in the great-war of words and swords, London and Paris took the view that the U. S. S. R. would prove a detriment to Germany rather than an ally.

Displacing the traditional German idea of a drive towards the East, there will be a communist push towards the West, in the view of the Western Allies.

Italy struggled to hang tight to her neutrality, but remarked how Chancellor Hitler in his Danzig speech skimmed over the Axis and gave no guarantees regarding the Balkan states.

France's infantry, artillery, and mechanized divisions fought on in their fashions of extreme care on the Western Front, while in Britain Chancellor Hitler was accused of having been "determined on war," and in Paris semi-official statements referred to "Soviet treason" and Hitler "lies."

Britain said Hitler "was determined on war . . . He can hardly expect Britain to believe that German aspirations are limited, and that Germany has no further aspirations in the West."

A semi-official French statement held that "Hitler intended to destroy Poland, and that represented only a step in his attempt at domination of Europe . . . France and Britain will not allow Hitler's dictatorship to condemn the world to slavery."

Further German counter-attacks, with reinforcements from Poland participating, were reported in Paris, but France insisted that the superiority of her artillery held back the Germans.

The fate of Warsaw was in doubt, although a German semi-official military communique said "enemy resistance has ceased on all fronts, except that northwest of Lemberg." The fact that the usually fluent Warsaw radio station sent no broadcasts that could be picked up in neighboring neutral capitals was, however, foreboding.

Soviet troops were said by Britain to have advanced along a 500-mile front to a depth, at some points, of 200 miles—and this march, it was said, took the Red Army well beyond the line contemplated in the secret protocols to the Russo-German non-aggression pact of last month.

Therefore, the British believe, the Germans will be forced to keep at least a strong watch on the Vistula lest the Soviets seize this opportunity for an infusion of Communism into Central Europe.

Fears that Russia is not through, following the seizure of White Russia and the Ukraine in Poland, arose from the submarine Orzel incident in the harbor of Tallin, Estonia. When the interned submarine escaped, reportedly with her torpedoes in firing condition, Russia announced that "measures" were being taken.

Polish submarines, it was affirmed, used Baltic neutral points for bases, and the Russians charged that Estonians connived in the escape of the Orzel.

What next? Europe wonders today. Will France continue her cautious tactics on the Saar front, giving Germany time to bring troops westward and launch on offensive through the lowlands?

These questions were pondered in Washington, too; for in the American capital President Roosevelt meets today with leaders of Congress representing both parties, and tomorrow the president goes personally before Congress with his plan for alteration of American neutrality measures.
